

Reflection #3 -Clin Cor II

Evaluation	Proficient (100%)	Developing (85%)	Minimum Performance (70%)	Unsatisfactory (0%)
Content & Focus (25%)	Clearly understands content, is focused upon the most relevant information, and uses the best sources of evidence.	Familiar with content, but may not be appropriately focused or does not use best sources of evidence.	Has some familiarity with content but lacks focus on most important elements. Sources are tangentially relevant but not on target.	Unfamiliar with content required for participation.
Logic & Flow (25%)	Able to present an argument or topic in a logical and organized fashion.	Presents an argument or topic in a thorough way but needs better logic or organization.	Presents some aspects of a topic well but lacks logic or organization in other aspects.	Disorganized presentation, not supporting a point of view.
Analysis (40%)	Identifies relationships between components and clearly states opinions or ideas.	Identifies relationships between components but lacks clarity in supporting opinions or ideas.	Identifies some relationships and components but lacks some important connections.	Does not identify components or relationships.
Communication & Collaboration (10%)	Demonstrates good listening and reflecting skills and contributes appropriately.	Listening or reflecting skills are good and contributes appropriately.	Listening or reflecting skills are minimal and contributes only minimally.	Does not contribute appropriately or lacks listening and reflecting skills.

After going through this final self-assessment, I believe that I would grade myself as: $25 + 21.25 + 34 + 8.5 = 88.75$

In my opinion, I felt that this final round was the hardest one I've come to encounter, and Professor Lopez made us as a class really think outside of the box with our complex patient case. We took several weeks going deeper into this case, and consistently revised previous DDX and made sense of what was more important to rule in and out.

I feel that this was the most realistic approach now that clinicals are around the corner and I appreciate what we should be focusing on. The weekly assignments of being able to hand off to another physician or staff was also important and I am happy that we were able to practice that. I felt that I could have been more proactive on some days where I was a little quieter but overall, I tried my best.